

WINTER SEEDHEADS (Feature: 2417)

If flowers are left uncut over the winter period, their seed heads, with a dusting of frost, add another dimension to the winter garden.

Location: UK

Photographer: Dianna Jazwinski

URL: <http://www.gapphotos.com/featuredetails.asp?featureref=2417>

SYNOPSIS

Low winter light catching the frost and their quirky shapes add a sculptural quality as well as providing food for the birds. Grasses also provide texture and shape, each individual blade being highlighted by the frost.